

Siona Benjamin

February 20, 2018,
7:30 p.m.

Wilde Auditorium
Harry Jack Gray Center
University of Hartford
200 Bloomfield Ave.
West Hartford, CT

ART AND SPIRITUALITY

A Jew born in India among Hindus and Muslims, educated Catholic and Zoroastrian, living in New Jersey, Siona Benjamin negotiates cultural boundaries at all levels. Mixing imagery and styles from ancient sources and contemporary culture, she challenges racism by imaging her own skin, like the Hindu gods Kali and Krishna, as blue.

Siona Benjamin—
Transcultural Artist

Sponsored by the Art History Department, the Humanities Center and the Center for Judaic Studies as part of the Humanities Center lecture series, "Secularism and Spirituality."